I have a MBA. Does it count for a year of engineering experience?
No, the MBA is a business degree not an engineering degree.

Do my four years of experience have to be consecutive? I have a gap of three months between my first and second engagements.

No. Experience does not have to be consecutive. You must list times of unemployment or non-engineering work on the experience record pages of the application along with a brief explanation. No reference is required for unemployment or non-engineering time periods.

I worked for two years in the aeronautical industry. I did not have a licensed PE supervisor. What do I do?
Your work must meet the requirements of exemption (see K.A.R.66-10-9-b 2). You must fill out the form for exemption from supervision of a licensed PE (page 8 of the application). Your supervisor must fill out the reference form, even if not licensed. You must also have references from three licensed PE's who know your work.

One of my supervisors is no longer with my company. How do I verify the work I did under him?
Keep in touch with your former supervisors if at all possible. If that is not possible and there is someone else in your company who reviewed your work during that time period, have him/her submit a reference form. All final decisions about experience verification rest with the Board.

I have ten years of experience. Do I have to list every supervisor that I have ever had and get a reference from them?

No, you must have references from three licensed PE supervisors who can verify at least four years of experience.
